Consultants

- ➤ No legitimate reason to distinguish between a company's employee and its consultant for attorney-client privilege purposes
- Privilege extends to consultants who are "in all relevant respects the functional equivalent of an employee."

In re High–Tech Employee Antitrust Litigation, 2013 WL 772668 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 28, 2013)

In-House Counsel

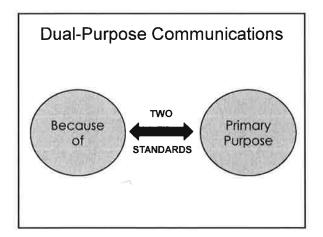

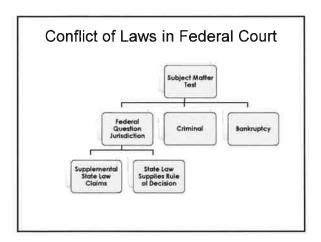

A corporation can protect material as privileged only upon a clear showing that inhouse counsel acted in a professional legal capacity.

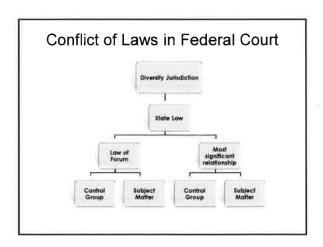

In-House Counsel

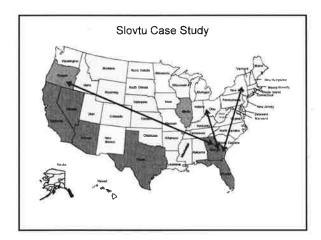

Legal Hat or Business Hat

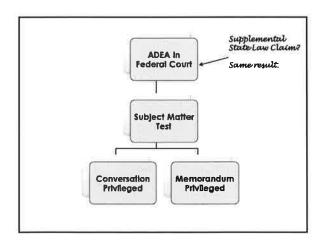

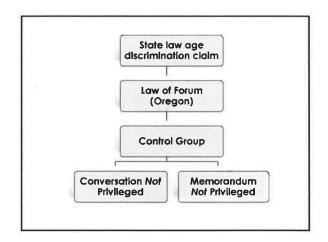

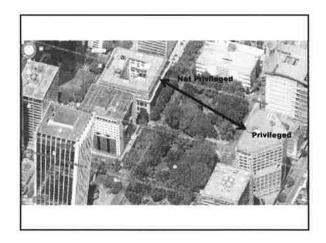

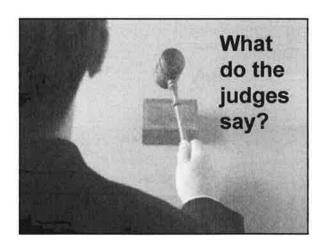

Slovtu Case Study

Copying In-House Lawyer Merely copying or "cc-ing" legal counsel, in and of itself, is not enough to trigger the attorney-client privilege. Phillips v. C.R. Bard, Inc., 290 F.R.D. 615 (D. Nev. 2013). Email Attachments Although the email to which the memorandum is attached is marked "private" the memorandum itself contains no similar designation. In re Mentor Corp., 632 F. Supp. 2d 1380 (M.D. Ga. Notice/Warning > While it is true that a mere stamp is insufficient to cloak an otherwise unprivileged document, court will not overlook absence of such a designation \succ The lack of any stamp indicating that the documents were confidential or privileged when created makes the potential for waiver even greater, and the absence of evidence on this issue more pertinent. -- Freiermuth v. PPG, 218 FRD 694

Notice/Warning

- Most law firms and corporate and government legal departments include this warning on all of their emails as a matter of course. That does not mean, however that all of the information contained in those emails is confidential, or has continued to remain confidential.
 - Penn. Dep't Public Welfare v. U.S., 2006 WL 3792628

Warnings

➤ In a situation where the author or recipient of allegedly privileged documents functions as a corporate manager as well as an attorney, efforts must include clear designation of those communications sent or received in his capacity as a legal advisor.

New York Federal Court

Kept Confidential?

> Although the Defendant claims that these documents were treated as confidential and kept in locked cabinets, none of these documents is marked "confidential" or "privileged." The documents were not segregated, but were intermingled with all other personnel documents.

New York Federal Court

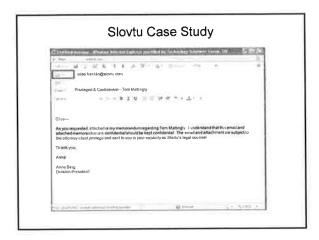

Stamps—Documents

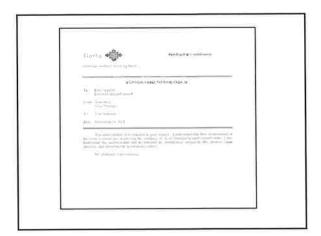

➤ Just because a document is designated "CONFIDENTIAL-ATTORNEY/CLIENT PRIVILEGED" does not mean that the Court can assume that the information was continually maintained as such.

Penn. Dep't of Public Welfare v. United States, 2006 WL 3792628 (W.D. Pa. 2006).
